

Principle-Based Reserving • September 28-29, 2009

NAIC Central Office • Kansas City, Missouri

Mark your calendar to attend this informative seminar on the principle-based valuation system. This two-day learning event is designed to acquaint you with the principle-based reserving framework. At the conclusion of the seminar, you will understand the issues well enough to discuss them with policy-makers.

This seminar is designed for those involved in the regulation or valuation of life insurance reserves. If you are an accountant, actuary, attorney, examiner, law-maker or regulator, you are encouraged to attend.

At the conclusion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Describe the history and important milestones in the evolution of the Principle-Based Reserving methodology.
- Outline the key components of Standard Valuation Law.
- Understand the computations and principles used for computing reserves.
- Comprehend reporting and documentation requirements.
- Recognize legislative and other current and emerging issues.

The design of this class is consistent with Continuing Education Requirements set forth by the American Academy of Actuaries.
